Radiology Medical Physicists
Scottsdale, AZ

Heal the sick, advance the science, share the knowledge.

You are invited to partner with the nation’s #1 Hospital in Arizona (U.S. News & World Report 2016-2017). Practicing at Mayo Clinic provides a rewarding career that promotes excellence in patient-centered care. You can thrive in an environment that supports innovation and has a wealth of resources available to you – including an integrated EMR and collaboration with top specialists – to give your patients the quality of care you want to achieve.

The Department of Radiology at Mayo Clinic in Arizona is seeking a Clinical Medical Physicist. The Division of Medical Physics at Mayo Clinic in Phoenix, AZ invites applicants interested in a faculty position in our clinical Medical Physics division. There is also an opportunity to serve as the Division Chair of Medical Physics if interested. The successful candidate will join a Medical Physics division that currently numbers 4 PhD, 2 MS and 3 BS staff.

The successful applicant will be expected to contribute to the clinical practice as well as focus on clinical innovation. Excellent communication skills and the ability to interact with patients and other healthcare professionals are essential, along with the ability to lead and be an effective team member. Abundant opportunities exist with working with strong scientific collaborators and clinicians from the other Mayo Clinic campuses (Rochester and Florida) as well as nearby institutions including Arizona State University, the nation’s largest university by enrollment. Teaching duties of the Medical Physicist would be to a broad audience, including clinical trainees (16 radiology residents), allied health staff and staff clinicians.

Qualified candidate will have detailed knowledge in medical physics as indicated by a strong first author publication bibliography. Candidates must have a PhD from an accredited graduate program in Medical Physics or equivalent and must be board certified with the American Board of Radiology. An academic rank of Associate Professor or Professor is desired.
